

Early 19th century Franciscan Padres of the California Coastal Mission chain developed a soft, mild cheese to preserve milk. Gold miner and cattle rancher, David Jacks of Monterey, adopted their technique and took his product to market under the name "Jacks Cheese." In the early 20th century Celso Viviani of Sonoma, site of the northern most of the Spanish Missions, followed David Jacks' lead and developed his own version of the classic style, by then known simply as "Jack". The Viviani family's hard work and dedication created the new "Sonoma Jack" which has become synonymous with quality.

When flavored Sonoma Jack was introduced in 1981, popularity soared.
