Boyajian

Boyajian, Inc. is a company based in Canton, Massachusetts, near Boston. It is named after its president and founder, John Boyajian. John's Armenian background strongly influenced him. "I grew up in a large, close-knit family where food always played a central role" he says. John would help pick fresh herbs and vegetables from his grandparents' garden and place them in jugs of olive oil to steep. The family would gather at the table for hours each Sunday, sharing food and stories. "The comfort I felt back then is what I strive for now" says John. "Good food, fond memories and a genuine caring for family and friends are essential to enjoying life every day".

John tuned his love for food into a business. It began with caviar in 1978, and the product line grew to include infused oils and vinegars in 1985. The award-winning products that bear the Boyajian name are used by professional and home chefs the world over. The methods used for producing the infused products are based on time-honored family recipes. Using the same recipes today, we take the time to do it right."
