

Australian Macadamias

Australian macadamias are one of the most prized natural health foods indigenous to Australia.

Processing of the in shell nuts at McCadam's modern facility at Alphadale in Northern New South Wales produces the world's finest quality macadamias. Our orchards are located in some of Australia's most beautiful rainforest and subtropical environments. This is the area where macadamias were first discovered.

Research indicates that daily consumption of macadamias has a beneficial effect in reducing cholesterol and decreasing the risk of heart disease. Macadamias have the highest percentage of monounsaturated fats of any tree nuts and also contain antioxidants in the form of Omega 3 that are noted to be beneficial to health. And as with all tree nuts they contain no cholesterol!
